Working with Us

Pepper Street Studio in Naples, Florida, is more than just a business creating organic candles, soap, home products, and diffusers. For owner Brandi Woolington, it's a way to support her daughter and others with special needs. Woolington's daughter was diagnosed with Rett Syndrome, a neurological disorder, at 5. This inspired Woolington to start a business and raise funds to create a second home for people with special needs called Sofi's Home, named after her daughter. The home would provide a gathering place for people with disabilities and their families and employment opportunities through Pepper Street Studio.

Woolington, who has an interior design background, started her business in October 2019 and had to shift to more digital sales during the pandemic. She built her business one person at a time, meeting customers in parking lots to drop off her products, and grew her business through word of mouth. She opened a studio in North Naples in November 2020 and started hosting candle-making classes, which helped her business thrive. Woolington's mother has joined the company, and they have expanded into the Western region with a production studio in Filer, Idaho. With a great product and a loyal following, Woolington is excited to continue growing Pepper Street Studio and supporting her vision for Sofi's Home.
