Hummingbird Feeder Brushes

Nectar feeders should be cleaned once a week or more often in hot weather to prevent harmful microorganisms like mold and yeasts from developing. Hummingbirds can detect old, fermented nectar and may not use a particular feeder location again until the nectar is changed. These brushes also work great for oriole feeders and tube seed feeders.

Natural materials help keep birds safe from predators as they blend in with surrounding areas and do not attract unwanted attention. Birds desire a house made of rough material because rough surfaces make entering and exiting easier. Reed grass and cedar roofs are resistant to premature decay.

Roosting Pockets are especially beneficial to non-migrating songbirds during the winter months. They provide much-needed refuge from harsh storms, wind, freezing rain, heavy snow, and the bitter cold.

Cobane Ornaments

GIFTS

More great selling products from

See our Gift Essentials Holiday catalog for the full selection of Margaret Cobane's realistic and intricately detailed ornaments.

Gift Essentials handmade, glass-blown ornaments are the original designs of Margaret Cobane, artist and founder of Cobane Ornaments. She has been designing blown glass ornaments for 20 years. Margaret painstakingly details each ornament design, which is then given to skilled sculptor to create a mold, which also has to meet approval from Margaret's discerning eye. From Margaret's color design another factory artisan hand paints the glass mold, to create the original blown glass ornament sample. These are then hand blown and painted by talented craftsmen who have learned that the Cobane painted ornaments are the most lifelike and accurate wild birds and animals (as well as fun Holiday Presents) available in the world. The resulting birds have graced the cover of the National Wildlife Federation Catalog for many years. Margaret continues to create the new designs for Gift Essentials.
